

When we build something in computer graphics, we build it out of polygons (flat shapes). It's a lot like building a paper model, but it doesn't exist in the real world.

Little Robot is made out of 24 polygons.

The 'Black Zero', a spaceship in the film Man of Steel, was made out of over nine million polygons (9,000,000)!

